

Dr Alexandra Novosseloff is a permanent consultant on multilateralism at the Centre for Analysis, Forecasting and Strategy of the French Ministry of Foreign And European Affairs, and a non resident Senior Fellow at the International Peace Institute in New York.

Alexandra holds a PhD in political science from the University of Paris-Panthéon-Assas (Paris 2), and works since then on UN peacekeeping and Security Council related issues with various research institutes, including NUPI. She has been the team leader for DRC in NUPI's EPON project.

Among her latest publications are : "The Many Lives of a Peacekeeping Mission: The UN Operation in Côte d'Ivoire" (New York: International Peace Institute, June 2018); The UN Military Staff Committee: Recreating a Missing Capacity (New York: Routledge, Global Institutions Series, 2018); "UN Peacekeeping: Back to Basics Is Not Backwards," Global Observatory 2018; "Road to a Better UN? Peace Operations and the Reform Agenda" (with Arthur Boutellis, New York: International Peace Institute, November 2017); "Keeping Peace From Above: Air Assets in UN Peace Operations" (New York: International Peace Institute, October 2017); Des ponts entre les hommes, pictures and texts, 2017, éditions du CNRS / Presses des Ponts, Paris; Le Conseil de sécurité, entre impuissance et toute puissance, 2016, Paris, éditions CNRS Biblis.